NOTIFICATION

Subject: Current IAI-supported projects across the Americas

Dear Madam or Sir,

I am pleased to share information about the current projects that the IAI is supporting across the Americas. These initiatives bring together communities, scientists, and policymakers to address challenges related to climate, health, forests, and human mobility by using ecosystem-based adaptation to foster resilient and sustainable futures.

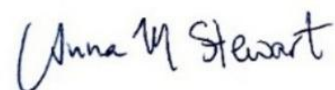

The projects (please find the document enclosed) cover a range of pressing environmental, social, and health issues through transdisciplinary and collaborative approaches. They focus on themes such as tropical forest conservation, human migration and mobility in the context of rapid global change, the connections between climate, environment, and health, and ecosystem-based adaptation (EbA) in both urban and rural areas. The emphasis is on integrated, systemic perspectives.

These initiatives promote the co-creation of knowledge among academic researchers, policymakers, Indigenous peoples, local communities, and other stakeholders, ensuring inclusive participation throughout the project lifecycle. Together, these efforts aim to strengthen regional capacities, inform decision-making, and advance equitable, ethical, and actionable solutions, including nature-based strategies—to enhance resilience and sustainability in response to complex global change processes.

Please find the document enclosed. We encourage you to revise these projects and share them with colleagues, institutions, and networks.

The text of this notification is also available on the IAI website at: <https://iai.int/en/archivo-institucional/notificaciones/>.

Please accept, Sir, Madam, the assurances of my highest consideration.

Anna Stewart-Ibarra
Executive Director
